THE REGIONAL PLANNING COMMISSION — COUNTY OF LOS ANGELES

Population Research Section —MUtual 9211, Extension 2860
108 West Second Street, Los Angeles 12, California
Milton Breivogel, Director of Planning

Los Angeles County Population:

As of July, 1954, the Los Angeles County population is estimated by the Regional Planning Commission to be 4,890,567. This is an increase of 738,880 or 17.8% for the 4¼ year period since the 1950 Census. In this quarter the population gain was 43,524 or at the rate of 174,096 per year.

Center of Population:

On several occasions inquiries have been received by this office for the location of the center of population for Los Angeles County.

There are two methods that are currently used to determine the center of population of an area. The first is the "median" method, which considers the equal distribution of population on both sides of a north-south line and an east-west line. The intersection of these two lines determines the "median" center of population. The second method is the "moment" or "center of gravity" method, which takes into account the distance as well as the population. For example, 1000 persons 10 miles from the center would be equivalent to 10,000 persons 1 mile from the center.

Generally, the population growth, in the coastal plain or south half of the county, has been in a northwest-south-east axis due to the constricting effect of the San Gabriel mountains to the northeast and the Pacific Ocean to the southwest. The two areas of greatest population expansion in recent years have been at opposite directions — the San Fernando Valley, in the northwest section, balanced by the South East, Long Beach, Norwalk and Whittier areas, in the southeast. Thus, the center of population has moved only slightly to the east because the two areas of greatest expansion have been at opposite poles.

The centers of population by the two methods are shown on the accompanying tables.

3. Defined as L. A. County less North County (Statistical Area No. 20.1) and although not strictly comparable, the effect of the North County would be negligible due to a small population.

City of Lakewood:

On April 16, 1954 the incorporation of Lakewood, as the 46th city in Los Angeles County, became effective upon filing with the Secretary of State. The Commission estimates a population of 51,777 based on a field count of 15,001 dwelling units taken a week prior to the official incorporation date.

Statistical Area Map:

The Statistical Area map has been revised to show the changes in city boundaries since December, 1952. The same map will be used in the subsequent issues, although the tabulations will reflect any transfers of dwelling units or population due to annexation or incorporation.

Adjustments:

Dwelling unit figures were revised, reflecting the special census, for the cities of Arcadia, Glendora, La Verne, Palos Verdes Estates, San Marino and Torrance. Effective March 23, 1954, the city of La Verne annexed 410 acres with 7 dwelling units from Statistical Area No. 25.41 and 43 acres from No. 26.1. On March 24, 1954, the City of Whittier annexed 5 acres with 19 dwelling units from No. 34.2. And, on May 26, 1954, the City of Long Beach annexed 560 dwelling units, of which 68 were completed and the remainder under construction, from No. 17.33.

Population estimates were adjusted on the basis of the final figures for the cities of Glendora, Palos Verdes Estates, San Marino, and West Covina.

These abrupt adjustments should not be interpreted to mean that the areas suddenly lost or gained actual population or dwelling units, but the current estimates are closer to the actual figures as found by the special censuses or other sources.

THE REGIONAL PLANNING COMMISSION — COUNTY OF LOS ANGELES

Population Research Section — MAdison 9-4747, Extension 212
108 West Second Street, Los Angeles 12, California
Milton Breivogel, Director of Planning

Los Angeles County:

The Commission estimates the Los Angeles County population to be 4,934,931 as of October, 1954. Since the last official Census on April, 1950, the population increase is estimated to be 783,244; for the 4½ year period — an average rate of 174,000 per year. On the basis of this average growth the 5 million mark could be reached sometime between February and March, 1955 or within five months.

Decentralization:

It appears that the decentralization trend for the Los Angeles Metropolitan area is continuing unabated. The geographic extent of decentralization is indicated by the recent increased subdivision activity enjoyed by the adjacent counties of Orange and San Bernardino. In other words, the radius of decentralization for the Metropolitan area has a tendency to reach further and further into the hinterlands.

The special census of the City of Los Angeles last year, furnished us definite data on the increasing distance from the central city of the new areas with population increase. Incidentally, the area of greatest growth occurred at that time on a radius of approximately 15 miles from the Civic Center. Most likely, one of the important factors was the effect of the freeways in extending the area within a reasonable travel-time from the employment centers.

Another clue as to the effect of decentralization noted in the Los Angeles City special census was the numerical and geographical extent of areas showing population losses in the older residential sections. Probably this is a multi-nuclei phenomena and all cities with old residential sections would show similar characteristics of population movement if a special census was taken today. This could well be the explanation for the less than anticipated population gain for the special census of San Gabriel of September 22, 1954.

The effect of the above two factors of (1) loss of population in the older residential sections and (2) ever extending radius of new residential area results in an overflow of a portion of the population increase to areas outside of Los Angeles County. For these reasons, although the metropolitan area population may continue to grow, proportionately the population growth in Los Angeles County may level off or even decrease in the future due to the static county boundary lines and a corresponing proportionate population increase may occur in the surrounding counties.

Adjustments:

Subsequent to the July, 1954 bulletin, the population estimate for the City of San Gabriel was adjusted downward. The Commission's estimate as of July, 1954 was 23,085 for the City of San Gabriel and the official Census population was 21,755 as of September 22, 1954.

In addition, the dwelling unit figures in various areas were revised due to annexations, special census or closure of housing projects. The "Grandview Highlands" annexation resulted in 419 dwelling units being transferred from Los Angeles City, Statistical Area No. 33.1 to Burbank City, Statistical Area No. 4.1. The City of Long Beach, Statistical Area No. 17.2 annexed 236 dwelling units in "Increment No. 123" from the Unincorporated Area, Statistical Area No. 17.32; 54 dwelling units in "Increment No. 130" from the Unincorporated Area, Statistical Area No. 17.33; 484 dwelling units in "Increment No. 113"; and a loss of 400 dwelling units from a closure of the Cabrillo Homes Housing Project. In the City of West Covina, Statistical Area No. 7.3, 439 dwelling units were removed as an adjustment based on the special census of May 6, 1954.

These abrupt adjustments should not be interpreted to mean that the areas suddenly lost or gained actual population or dwelling units, but the current estimates are closer to the actual figures as found by the special censuses or other sources.
